As nursing students approach the final phase of their academic journey at Capella University, the culmination of their knowledge, clinical practice, and reflective learning becomes central. The last assessments in each course are more than just assignments; they are professional milestones. In this blog, we will explore the final evaluations in key nursing courses: NURS FPX 4065 Assessment 5, NURS FPX 4065 Assessment 6, NURS FPX 4015 Assessment 5, and NURS FPX 4905 Assessment 4. These assessments synthesize practical experiences and theoretical knowledge to prepare learners for advanced nursing practice.

NURS FPX 4065 Assessment 5: Final Care Coordination Plan

The NURS FPX 4065 Assessment 5 represents the capstone of the care coordination course. In this assignment, students are required to develop a comprehensive care coordination plan that reflects collaboration with stakeholders, patient-centered values, and a deep understanding of the healthcare system.

This assessment emphasizes the importance of tailoring interventions to individual patient needs, including mental, emotional, and cultural considerations. Students must also demonstrate how their proposed care plan aligns with national health goals and ethical frameworks.

The final care coordination plan challenges students to integrate data analysis, interprofessional collaboration, and policy awareness into a practical solution that enhances patient outcomes. It's a definitive moment where students transition from academic learners to reflective practitioners.

NURS FPX 4065 Assessment 6: Practicum Hours Completion

One of the most critical steps in becoming a competent nursing professional is the completion of clinical practicum hours. NURS FPX 4065 Assessment 6 marks the official documentation and reflection on these hours.

This assessment is more than a logbook. It involves presenting evidence of the 20 required hours spent working with a healthcare professional to apply care coordination strategies in a real-world setting. Students must also reflect on how this experience has influenced their understanding of care coordination, communication, patient advocacy, and system navigation.

By successfully completing this assessment, students validate their hands-on competencies and demonstrate the readiness to lead and manage care across the healthcare continuum.

NURS FPX 4015 Assessment 5: Final Teaching Presentation

In the NURS FPX 4015 Assessment 5, students are expected to present a final teaching project that educates a specific population about a public health or clinical issue. This assessment brings together previous learning about patient advocacy, vulnerable populations, and community-based care.

The presentation must be informative, culturally sensitive, and tailored to the literacy level of the target audience. Students are encouraged to use visual aids, PowerPoint slides, and evidence-based guidelines to deliver effective health education.

This final presentation demonstrates the student's ability to communicate complex medical information in a digestible and empowering manner. It also reinforces the nurse's role as a teacher and advocate in community health settings.

NURS FPX 4905 Assessment 4: Leadership and Collaboration in Practice

NURS FPX 4905 Assessment 4 is a vital component of the leadership and management course. This assessment focuses on how nurses lead interdisciplinary teams, manage conflict, and foster a culture of quality and safety in healthcare organizations.

Students are required to present an evaluation of their practicum experience while emphasizing their contributions to collaborative efforts. The goal is to showcase leadership behaviors such as active listening, shared decision-making, ethical judgment, and resource optimization.

This final reflection encourages students to analyze real-life challenges encountered during their practicum and how they addressed them using leadership competencies. It is a key demonstration of readiness for advanced roles in nursing management or executive leadership.
